

I am writing concerning the new broadcast service called Low Power FM. I have been told that the LPFM may be given priority over current FM translator service. I am a listener of KLOVE and would be very upset if I were not able to listen to this station in the future. My children ages 7 and 9 also listen to KLOVE and prefer listening to this station rather than other stations on the radio.

This music is family friendly and I know that no matter what time of day I will be listening to wholesome music for my entire family. I can not say that about any other station on the radio.

My family chooses not to watch television due to the content of most of the shows being shown on television today. The reality shows are horrible. What is shown to be acceptable on television today is not acceptable in our household. My family prefers to read or spend time together then to subject ourselves to the low moral quality of television today.

In closing, I respectfully request the the FCC do not give priority to the LPFM stations and to let stations like KLOVE to remain broadcasting on FM translators. KLOVE provides good quality moral entertainment for the whole family and if this station was displaced it would be such a loss to it's millions of listeners. Please help us to prevent the erosion of our society by letting good quality family programming prevail.

Thank you,

Jacqueline Uhler
